For more than 80 years, the Missionary Sisters of Mary Immaculate have been reaching out to the poor and those in need.

In East Africa, they operate two mission hospitals in rural areas where healthcare was previously unavailable. They operate more than 30 health centers and serve more remote regions through their mobile healthcare facility. They also help children through pastoral ministry, education and job training programs.

These names are very responsive to all overseas, health, and mission-oriented appeals.
