World Villages for Children, a project of Asian Relief, Inc., maintains Boystowns and Girlstowns in the Philippines, Mexico, Guatemala, Brazil, Honduras, So. Korea, and Tanzania that are home to more than 20,000 poor children.

These children are provided with food, clothing and medical care. They also receive a free high school education along with extensive vocational training relevant to local industries and businesses. This education and training enables them to obtain better employment when they graduate so they can break free of a life of poverty, suffering and despair.

This list is extremely responsive to humanitarian, religious and social fundraising appeals both in the U.S. and overseas.
